Contract Management: From Business Controller to Business Enabler

Tim Cummins, President & CEO of the International Association for Contract & Commercial Management, discusses the ongoing evolution of commercial contract management in a podcast posted by Determine Inc.

He says the future of contracts will be far more versatile and adaptive, with technology and dynamic processes driving the way organizations structure.

He has seen a dramatic increase in senior executive interest and awareness of the potential that contracting holds. More and more organizations are recognizing that misalignment is stunting their ability to be flexible, agile and creative, Determine says on its website.

Listen to the podcast.