Top AIA A201 Construction Contract Changes: A Handy Cheat-Sheet

In a post at Construction Law Musings, Melissa Dewey Brumback writes about updates to the American Institute of Architects standard form contract documents.

Dewey, a construction law attorney with Ragsdale Liggett in Raleigh, North Carolina, discusses the top 10 changes.

Those changes include differing site conditions, owner's right to carry out the work, direct communication between the owner and contractor, contractor's means and methods, notice provisions, notice related to evidence of owner's financial arrangements, liquidated damages, dates of commencement and substantial completion, termination for convenience, digital data, and insurance

Read the article.