PREX17: The Premier Conference for In-House E-Discovery Professionals

PREX17, the premier conference for in-house e-discovery professionals, will be in Portland, OR, Sept. 12-14, 2017, according to an announcement from Zapproved. The event will be at the Portland Art Museum.

PREX brings together the legal preservation community to learn, grow and connect to solve e-discovery for the future, Zapproved says on its website.

Pulitzer-Prize winning journalist, constitutional lawyer and New York Times best-selling author Glenn Greenwald will headline the event. Known for breaking the Edward Snowden story, Greenwald will reveal insights about the fascinating intersection of privacy, civil rights, technology and the implications for e-discovery. His address is titled "Secrets, Surveillance and Civil Liberties: Navigating the Boundary Layer Between Law and Technology in the Connected Society."

The conference has received accreditation for CLE credits.

Register or learn more about the program.