

Giuliani Taps New Lawyer: Friend, Prosecutor, Veteran of DC Legal Dramas

Rudy Giuliani has tapped Miami-based veteran attorney Jon A. Sale, of counsel with Nelson Mullins, to represent him before the congressional inquiry into whether President Donald Trump improperly pressured Ukraine's president for a political favor.

The Miami Herald reports that "Sale is also no stranger to navigating the ways of Washington, having served as an assistant special Watergate prosecutor looking into the secret White House tapes of President Richard M. Nixon. Sale worked under two special prosecutors – Archibald Cox and Leon Jaworski."

Giuliani and Sale are former classmates at New York University law school.
