

Google Promotes Halimah DeLaine Prado To General Counsel

“Google announced that Halimah DeLaine Prado, a 14-year veteran of the company, has been promoted to serve as its General Counsel. The move would position DeLaine Prado as one of Google’s highest-ranking Black executives at the company,” reports Johan Moreno in Forbes.

“Previously, DeLaine Prado served as a VP of Legal for the company’s product team. She will report to the company’s SVP of Global Public Affairs, Kent Walker.”

“DeLaine Prado’s appointment comes months after the retirement of David Drummond, Alphabet’s former chief legal officer. He departed amid allegations of inappropriate relationships with subordinates during his time at the company.”

Read the article.