

[Hanzo Webinar] Slack For Legal Teams: Getting The Most Out Of Collaboration While Mitigating Risk

Hanzo, a pioneer of contextual collection and dynamic web content ediscovery and compliance software, today announced an outstanding lineup of industry experts for an upcoming live webinar, Slack For Legal Teams: Getting The Most Out Of Collaboration While Mitigating Risk, on July 29, 2020, at 1:00 pm ET. In this live webinar event, panelists will explore how legal teams can use Slack for their own operational efficiency, guide corporate use to mitigate risk, and uncover best practices for managing discovery obligations with collaboration data.

EVENT DESCRIPTION

In this work-from-home world, collaboration applications like Slack have gone from the relatively small domain of IT and Development to expand, almost overnight, across the entire corporation. This dramatic shift means two things for legal: understanding the opportunity of this new platform and managing the risk within their business. This webinar will shine a light on how legal teams can reap the productivity benefits of Slack in their daily communications and operations. It will also explore how legal can be on the front lines to improve corporate use and governance of Slack, and share practical insights regarding meeting the preservation challenges of modern collaborative data.

Speakers will discuss:

- An overview of Slack and why it's replacing email and changing the way work gets done
- Why legal teams should be embracing Slack to improve their communications and operations.

- Why is collaboration content the brave new world for ediscovery
- Best practices for information governance and preservation to improve corporate use of Slack
- The power of Slack's Discovery API and purpose-built discovery solutions

SPEAKERS

Moderator:

- Brad Harris, VP Product, Hanzo

Panelists:

- Mark Pike, Legal Director, Product Counsel, Slack
- Ellen Blanchard, Director, Discovery and Information Governance, T-Mobile
- Meghan Brosnahan, Information Governance & eDiscovery Leader
