

Hillary Clinton's Coming Legal Crisis

The latest release of Hillary Clinton emails entails real risks for her, according to a report published by RealClear Politics.

“True, Democratic voters have shown little interest, and the mainstream media only a bit more,” the article says. “Their focus, when they do look, is on the number of documents now considered classified, their foreign-policy revelations, and the political damage they might cause. These are vital issues, but Clinton faces a far bigger problem. She and her closest aides could be indicted criminally.”

RealClear Politics says the FBI reportedly has assigned 100 agents full time to the investigation and another 50 temporarily.

Read the article.