

Inogen Hires General Counsel and Secretary

“Medical technology company Inogen has recruited Jason Somer as executive vice president and general counsel and secretary, effective July 12. Somer will join Inogen from Invoca where he has been head legal counsel. Before his time at Invoca, he was associate general counsel at Sunniva and general counsel and corporate secretary for Innova Gaming Group,” reports Ben Maiden in Corporate Secretary.

“Before joining Innova, Somer was senior vice president of business development and general counsel at solar energy development company Sunora Energy Solutions. Earlier in his career he was vice president of special projects and the senior global counsel at Shanghai-based solar energy technology company Suntech Power, director of legal affairs and business development at Ironport Systems and associate general counsel and business development director at Neoforma.”

Read the article.