IP Attorney Bradley D. Coburn Joins Dykema Cox Smith's Austin Office

Bradley D. Coburn has joined Dykema's Intellectual Property Department as a member of the firm's Austin office, the firm announced. Prior to joining Dykema, Coburn practiced at Denko Coburn Lauff LLP and Fish and Richardson PC.

Coburn litigates intellectual property cases involving patent infringement, trademark infringement, copyright infringement, theft of trade secrets and unfair competition. He also counsels clients on IP licensing, trademark protection and prosecution, and employment issues related to protecting intellectual property.

"Bradley's addition bolsters the firm's presence and enhances its bench strength in Texas," said Allan Gabriel, Director of Dykema's Intellectual Property and Intellectual Property Litigation Department. "There is no doubt that his experience and proficiency in IP law will benefit our clients a great deal."

Coburn received a J.D. from the University of Texas Law School and a B.S. in Economics from the Wharton School of the University of Pennsylvania. After law school, he served as a law clerk to the Honorable James. R. Nowlin at the United States District Court for the Western District of Texas. He has been recognized as a Texas Super Lawyer and is a former president of the Austin chapter of the Federal Bar Association.