

James Moriarty Joins Chesapeake Utilities as GC, VP

Chesapeake Utilities Corp. has announced today that James Moriarty has joined the company as Vice President, General Counsel and Corporate Secretary.

In his new role, Moriarty will oversee the company's legal affairs by managing the company's internal legal function, and managing outside counsel, Chesapeake Utilities said in a news release.

"He will provide counsel on legal matters to senior management and the business units to ensure compliance with applicable laws and regulations, and advise senior management and the board on corporate governance matters," the release continues. "In addition, he will provide legal advice on all major business transactions and assist management on governmental relations, including lobbying and other legislative activities. Mr. Moriarty will oversee the preparation, review and negotiation of contracts and other legal documents and provide legal and contractual support for project development and transactions."
