

Jennifer Dulos' Family Sues CT Judge Over Court Delays Due to COVID

"A lawyer representing Jennifer Dulos' family has filed a federal complaint seeking to require the state Judicial Branch to foreclose on Fotis Dulos' former Farmington residence even though housing proceedings have been halted due to the coronavirus pandemic," reports Lisa Backus in Stamford Advocate's Local News.

"Attorney Richard Weinstein, representing Gloria Farber and the estate of her late husband, Hilliard, wants the proceedings to move forward on the 14,000-square-foot home that was already in foreclosure when Fotis Dulos died Jan. 30 from an apparent suicide."

"In March, Gov. Ned Lamont issued an executive order, putting a moratorium on foreclosures and evictions as the pandemic spread throughout Connecticut. Weinstein filed the complaint against Judge Patrick Carroll, chief court administrator for the state Judicial Branch, out of 'sheer frustration,' the attorney said. 'Judges are precluded from entering into foreclosures and evictions even in non-COVID-related cases,' Weinstein said. 'My client is paying all this money every month and nothing is happening. I did not want to sue the judge, but every day that goes by, it costs the estate money.'"
