

King & Spalding Adds Trial Lawyer Steven Zager to Austin Office

Steven Zager has joined King & Spalding's Trial and Global Disputes practice as a partner in the Austin office.

In a release, the firm said Zager is a jury trial lawyer who represents clients in industries including medical devices, telecommunications, computer hardware and software, professional services, transportation, food and beverage, and chemicals.

Zager joined from Akin Gump Strauss Hauer & Feld, where he was based in New York and led that firm's Intellectual Property practice for many years. He is returning to Austin where he practiced earlier in his career.

Zager has been named a National Law Journal Intellectual Property Trailblazer, one of the top trial lawyers in America by the National Law Journal, and the Go To Lawyer for Litigation in Texas by Texas Lawyer. He was also named a Trial Ace by Law360.

Zager obtained his undergraduate degree and his JD from Vanderbilt University.