

Lancaster County Lawyer Arrested for Alleged Threats to Kill Wife and Government Officials

“A Lancaster County lawyer, who was the longtime Akron borough solicitor, is facing charges following alleged threats to kill his wife and government officials living near Washington, D.C. and Virginia,” reports Andrew Forgotch in ABC27’s Local News.

“Kenelm Shirk, 71, was stopped by Pennsylvania State Police at the Sheetz near Shippensburg on January 21st.”

“Police in Cornwall, where Shirk lives, started looking for him after his wife called to report that her husband had threatened her life and was planning to attack government officials in the nation’s capital.”
