

Law firm praises Dennard informant Gableman: 'It takes courage for citizens to come forward'

"Longtime Banks riverfront developer Tom Gabelman, an attorney who works for the Board of Hamilton County Commissioners, is the unnamed informant in court documents outlining how Cincinnati City Councilwoman Tamaya Dennard sold her vote on a development deal for cash, his law firm, Frost Brown Todd, confirmed." report Sharon Coolidge in the Fox19 News.

"Frost Brown Todd fully agrees with Department of Justice's statement ... that 'it takes courage for citizens to come forward and assist law enforcement,' the firm wrote in a statement released Thursday afternoon."

"The firm was aware Gabelman was cooperating with authorities, though it remains unclear whether the Board of Hamilton County Commissioners, whom Gabelman works on behalf of, knew."

Read the article.