A group of law professors from around the country has filed a professional misconduct complaint against White House counselor Kellyanne Conway, a graduate of George Washington University Law School who was admitted to the D.C. Bar in 1995, reports The Washington Post.

In their letter, the professors wrote that Conway should be sanctioned for violating government ethics rules and "conduct involving dishonesty, fraud, deceit or misrepresentation."

"The 15 professors, who specialize in legal ethics, cite several incidents, including a television interview in which Conway made the 'false statement that President Barack Obama had "banned" Iraqi refugees from coming into the United States for six months following the "Bowling Green Massacre," ' and the use of her position to endorse Ivanka Trump products," writes Sari Horwitz.
