

Lawsuit Seeks $750 Million from Travis Scott, Drake and Live Nation over Astroworld Disaster

"A lawsuit has been filed on behalf of 125 attendees of Travis Scott's Astroworld festival and family members of those who died against the rapper, Drake, Live Nation, Apple Music and others, seeking $750 million and a jury trial. The lawsuit, which was filed in Texas' Harris County District Court by the," reports Kimberlee Speakman in Forbes.

"Buzbee Law Firm, alleges the attendees suffered mental and physical distress from the event due to the Astroworld organizers and performers senseless gross negligence. The lawsuit claims the people behind the event did not make an even minimal effort to keep concertgoers safe, citing the death of 21-year-old Axel Acosta, who was crushed by."

Read the article.