

Legal-Bay Lawsuit Funding Announces Roundup Litigation Settlements Still have No Definitive Timeframe

“Legal Bay, The Presettlement Funding Company, reports that Bayer is reassessing its efforts to settle the numerous lawsuits they are facing due to their Roundup brand weed killer. It is estimated that 30,000 plaintiffs still have outstanding suits against Monsanto a subsidiary of Bayer, claiming the,” reports PR Newswire in their blog.

“Bayer has agreed to pay compensation on some claims, even while disputing liability on others. However, it has already been ruled that it will take $9 billion to settle over 100,000 existing claims four claims alone had jury verdicts of $2 billion as well but are in appeals. At this time, Legal-Bay’s sources report that they are unaware.”
