Leveling Up Your CLM process With Contract Architecture

How are you organizing your contract process?

Contract organization not only leads to less frustration and friction, it leads to increased efficiency and speed in the contract lifecycle. Being able to create effective structures and clause taxonomy can lead to less time creating, reviewing, negotiating and executing contracts. Starting with the clause and building up, learn how you can better develop contract architecture to provide efficiencies and get through your contract process with more speed and less hiccups.

Join Paul Branch, COO of IACCM, Lauryn Haake of HBR Consulting, and Bobby Johnson, Product Manager at Conga as they discuss the following:

- Best practices in clause management
- Best Practices on contract architecture
- How to leverage these practices in your CLM
