January 21, 2026 – Littler, the world's largest employment and labor law firm representing management, has appointed William J. Anthony (New York) as chair of its Board of Directors for 2026. He succeeds Michael Wilder (Chicago), who has completed his three-year term limit but will continue serving as a board member.

In addition to Anthony's appointment, Littler named three new members to its Board: Kimberly J. Doud (Orlando), David B. Jordan (Houston), and Robert C. Long (Chicago/Columbus).

"On behalf of the firm, I congratulate Will on his appointment and express my gratitude to Michael for his leadership over the past three years," said Erin Webber, Littler's managing director and president. "I look forward to working with Will as he leads the firm's strategic priorities. Kim, David, and Bob bring valuable knowledge and perspectives that will benefit our growth."

Anthony, who has been a board member since 2024, is recognized for his expertise in complex class and collective litigation. He also advises organizations on a range of employment matters and frequently speaks on workplace law issues. His leadership extends to various firm committees and professional organizations.

"It is an honor to step into the chair role, and I look forward to collaborating with Erin and the board to continue our firm's success," Anthony stated.
