

Littler Partner Swaps Corporate Defense for Victims' Advocacy in Move to Wigdor

"Wigdor said Friday that Christine Hogan is joining the employment plaintiffs firm as a partner in New York from Littler Mendelson, where she worked defending employers for more than decade," reports Chinekwu Osakwe in Westlaw Today.

"As a Littler partner, Hogan represented large companies and organizations in individual and class action litigation involving discrimination, harassment and wage and hour claims, with a clientele that has included The American Museum of Natural History, United Parcel Service Inc, Uber Technologies Inc and Walgreens Co."

"But she said the pandemic gave her a chance to reevaluate her career, and she decided to make a change."
