

Magazine Profiles IRR Strategies General Counsel Ed Vidal

Hispanic Executive magazine has profiled Eduardo Vidal, general counsel of IRR Strategies, who moved to the United States as a nine-year-old boy from Cuba.

The profile tells how his family moved to Chicago where he later went to the University of Chicago. After five years in Chicago, he moved to New York where he spent 22 years working in the burgeoning corporate finance space of cross-border transactions with companies in Latin America.

Eventually, when that kind of work started to dry up, he sought opportunity in Texas, where he landed with a new business process outsourcing (BPO) company, (which includes call centers, technical support, and back-office paperwork) as general counsel. The company, IRR Strategies, LLC, provides global solutions for BPO services to small and medium-sized enterprises, private equity, and venture capital.
