Information Governance Policy and Contract Management Whitepaper

Merrill DataSite offers a complimentary white paper on building an information governance policy and choosing a contract management system that will comply with your company's policy needs.

The amount of information businesses require to operate has grown substantially in recent years, Merrill says. This information has created considerable improvements in many critical business functions. But each improvement also comes with new risks, and managing these risks involves a high level of coordination between numerous departments.

Building a good information governance policy helps set the stage for managing the challenges listed above. However, an effective contract management system is critical for a successful implementation of your information governance policy.

The paper, "Three steps to excellence in information governance," is designed to help you along your path of building an information governance policy and choosing a contract management system that will comply with your company's policy needs.
