

MSU Will Pay Fired GC Almost $1 Million Not to Work for Them

Bob Young, fired last week as Michigan State University's general counsel, will receive at least $990,402 in departing the university, school spokeswoman Emily Guerrant said Wednesday.

The Detroit Free Press reports that Young, the university's top lawyer, had a three-year contract that paid $425,000 a year in salary. The lump sum paid off the balance of the contract.

"Young had been brought in by interim President John Engler to guide the school's legal strategy as it dealt with the fallout from the Larry Nassar sexual assaults scandal, including hundreds of lawsuits filed by victims of the former MSU doctor. The first round of those suits ended in a $500-million settlement," according to Free Press reporter David Jesse.

Read the Free Press article.