Munck Wilson Mandala Adds Attorney Aaron Davidson as Dallas Partner

Munck Wilson Mandala, the Dallas-based technology law firm, announces that litigation attorney Aaron D. Davidson is joining the firm as a partner.

In a release, the firm said that Davidson represents both plaintiffs and defendants in complex commercial litigation and intellectual property disputes, including patent, trademark, copyright, and trade secret matters. With extensive experience in life sciences litigation, Davidson also represents pharmaceutical and medical device manufacturers in product liability lawsuits and government investigations. As defense counsel, he recently defeated a nine-figure patent damages claim that was featured in Texas Lawyer newspaper (Volterra Semiconductor Corp. v. Primarion).

“As a firm, two of our primary areas of focus are technology and trial work,” says William Munck, managing partner of Munck Wilson Mandala. “Aaron certainly strengthens both areas, and his skills in the courtroom will greatly benefit our clients.”

Davidson has earned repeated recognition on the annual Texas Rising Stars list of the state’s top young lawyers based on his work in intellectual property litigation and business litigation, representing clients in jurisdictions across the country. He began his practice at Baker Botts L.L.P. where he worked as a partner for the last seven years.

Davidson earned his law degree from Vanderbilt University Law School and holds a B.A. in Political Science from Taylor University, graduating magna cum laude.

“Aaron Davidson is an excellent addition to our practice group,” says Jamil Alibhai, chair of Munck Wilson’s Litigation Section. “His litigation experience will be a great asset to the firm and our clients.”
