Director Compensation Report: 2015-16 Executive Highlights

The National Association of Corporate Directors (NACD) has recently released its annual report on director compensation – a valuable guide NACD members use to benchmark their board's compensation practices.

Determining what constitutes fair director pay is no easy task, the association says in a release. It's important to periodically review your board's compensation practices and to understand how they compare to those of your industry peers.

Compiled in partnership with Pearl Meyer, the report provides a comprehensive overview of non-employee-director pay practices across a wide range of industries and company sizes. The report also includes six leading practices for director compensation from the Report of the NACD Blue Ribbon Commission on Director Compensation.

Download the report's summary.