Net Neutrality: What's at Stake?

A free on-demand webinar frames the history of the net neutrality debate and then explores the current proposed rules and the public response they have generated. The event is a Rocket Matter webinar with Michael Weinberg, a Vice President at Public Knowledge, a nonprofit digital advocacy group in Washington, D.C.

The webinar also puts the debate in the larger context of innovation on the internet and explain how you can get involved.

Over one million net neutrality comments have been filed with the Federal Communications Commission on the proposal that would allow cable companies to charge content providers extra fees to deliver faster service.
