

NFL Contracts that Teams Wish Would Disappear in 2022

“With the last of the confetti from Super Bowl LVI swept away from SoFi Stadium, the 2021-22 NFL season is officially in the books, and the league’s 32 teams will now look ahead to the offseason. The new league year and free agency will begin at 4 p.m. ET on March 16. Currently, nine teams are,” reports Michelle Bruton in Bleacher Report.

“The $208.2 million salary cap and will have to clean up their books before that date. Many of those teams and even ones that aren’t currently in salary cap hell wish that some of those contracts would magically disappear. Past regimes, and perhaps the same general managers who made those deals, are giving the 2022 iterations of these.”

Read the article.