

NHL Contract Efficiency Rankings: Grading Every Team in the League

“Last week we went through the league’s best and worst contracts, but that was only the tip of the iceberg a sneak peek toward a much larger outlook. It’s now time to look at every contract through the same lens. The best and worst contracts are usually the most interesting especially the worst, but those,” reports Dom Luszczyszyn in The Athletic.

“Teasers for a grander scale project where the league is graded on a whole according to their contract efficiency. It follows the same criteria as the best and worst contracts: How much surplus value will the deal provide and what’s the likelihood of providing positive value? That likelihood is important as nothing is a guarantee in this sport.”

Read the article.