

North American Propane and Butane Demand, Markets and Pricing

ICF International will present a webinar on how North American natural gas liquids (NGL) markets find a new balance in the era of shale-gas associated production boom.

The webinar will be Tuesday, Sept. 30, beginning at 2:30 p.m. Eastern time.

On its website, ICF says the rapid turnaround in the region's fortunes – from a significant importer to the world's largest exporter – has resulted in great opportunities for some market participants and daunting challenges for others. As the shakeout continues, ICF experts have continued to work with the industry to address these key issues.

Additional webinar discussion topics include:

- How does the market balance the needs of retail consumers, petchems, and exporters?
- How does planned export capacity align with available supply?
- How are changes in infrastructure impacting propane markets?
- What is the need and the outlook for propane storage?
- Where will butane and pentane production find a home?
- What is the outlook for prices?
