

Oil & Gas Journal to Present Midyear Forecast 2016 Webinar

Oil & Gas Journal will discuss highlights of the publication's annual Midyear Forecast in a free webinar scheduled for July 15 at 10 a.m. CDT.

"The Midyear Forecast is a special report that uses first-half data to update projections that appeared in OGI's Annual Forecast and Review this past January," the Journal says on its website. "Both reports project oil and gas markets through the end of the year worldwide, analyze demand product by product in the US, and highlight trends that will carry on beyond the current year. The webcast also will discuss political developments important to the oil and gas industry."

Presenters will be OGI Editor Bob Tippee and Senior Editor-Economics Editor Conglin Xu, who will summarize the Midyear Forecast projections in key categories, note important changes from January's forecasts, and examine reasons for the adjustments.

Register for the webinar.