Federal Judges Survey: Featured E-Discovery Case Law Report

For the third consecutive year, federal judges do not feel the typical attorney has the required knowledge to be effectively counseling clients on e-discovery matters, according to Exterro's Third Annual Judges Survey.

Exterro has compiled a report on the survey, which can be downloaded.

The report covers:

- E-Discovery advice from 22 federal judges on how to improve e-discovery practices
- Expert commentary from retired judges and e-discovery thought leaders, interpreting the results and how they should effect practices
- Judicial insight on the new FRCP rules and the role judges should play under them

Download the report.