26 Data Privacy Questions for Corporate Legal Departments

Exterro has published "26 Data Privacy Questions for Corporate Legal Departments," a new guide designed to determine if the necessary people, processes and technology are in place to ensure compliance and avoid costly future litigation over data privacy issues.

The guide can be downloaded from Exterro's website at no charge.

"With the EU's General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR) in effect and the California Consumer Privacy Act (CCPA) arriving in 2020 along with numerous other states following suit, businesses must meet new obligations around finding, reviewing and producing/deleting personal consumer data when requested," the company says.
