Download: How You Can Harness Digital Disruption

The National Association of Corporate Directors, in partnership with Marsh & McClennan Companies, has published a report outlining a practical approach to advancing board oversight of digital transformation and emerging technologies.

The report is available by downloading from the NACD website at no charge.

“This report includes fresh, primary research and one-on-one interviews with leading directors and experts and identifies five foundational principles that will help directors navigate the complexities of artificial intelligence, blockchain, the Internet of Things, robotics process automation and more,” the organization says on its website. “Each principle includes specific recommendations to help directors avoid potential pitfalls, spot red flags, and formulate and adopt a more cohesive oversight approach.”
