Clickthrough Litigation Trends 2002-2018: White Paper

PactSafe's legal experts – after studying more than 1,000 cases from 2002 to 2018 – have identified trends and best practices for defending clickthrough terms of service in court.

The results of that research are available from PactSafe in a free download from the company's website.

As the rate of litigation around terms of service increases (notably 626% from 2002 to 2018) businesses are increasingly aware of what they need to cover, PactSafe says on its website. While the content of online legal terms may be bulletproof, the way that companies currently track acceptance may leave them at risk.

The report covers:

- Aggregate data complied from the last 15 years of clickthrough cases
- The three different ways of forming online contracts and the success rate of each type.
- The factors that influence the court's decision as to the validity of an online agreement.
- The types of evidence you should be prepared to bring to court
