

Prosecutors Accuse Robert Kraft's Lawyers of Lying in Court

NBC News reports that prosecutors in the solicitation of prostitution case against New England Patriots owner Robert Kraft have accused two of his defense attorneys of lying.

The Palm Beach County State Attorney's Office filed a motion Tuesday asking that attorneys Alex Spiro and William Burck be held in contempt, according to NBC's Janelle Griffith and Xuan Thai.

Prosecutors claim that in court last week, Spiro falsely accused Jupiter police officer Scott Kimbark of telling other officers he would lie to justify the traffic stop of another customer of the day spa where Kraft was alleged to have committed an offense.

The defense lawyers denied the allegations of lying.
