

Rite Aid Appoints General Counsel

“Camp Hill, Pennsylvania-based Rite Aid has appointed Paul Gilbert as general counsel and corporate secretary,” reports Ben Maiden in Corporate Secretary’s Appointments.

“Gilbert joined the NYSE-listed company in an interim position on May 21 to help with its virtual AGM and other governance matters. Rite Aid, like hundreds of other US companies, switched from holding its AGM in person this year due to health and safety considerations arising from the Covid-19 pandemic.”

“Gilbert has also offered guidance on various business initiatives as Rite Aid pursues a strategy aimed at positioning the company as the leading mid-market pharmacy benefit management provider. As general counsel, he will be part of Rite Aid’s executive leadership team and senior leadership team and will lead the organization’s legal efforts.”
