

SEC v. Ripple: Hinman Docs Become Focus of New Conference

“Magistrate Judge Sarah Netburn has scheduled a new conference between the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission and Ripple lawyers to discuss renewed assertions of attorney-client privilege,” reports Alex Dovbnya in the U Today.

“Internal documents related to former high-ranking SEC official William Hinman will be at the core of the discussion. The conference is scheduled to take place on June 7. Since no call-in information has been provided, this appears to be an in-person conference only.”
