Simon Greenstone's Erin Nowell of Dallas Named Among Top Young Litigators

Litigation associate Erin Nowell from the Dallas office of Simon Greenstone Panatier Bartlett, PC, has earned a spot on the 2016 National Bar Association "40 Under 40 Best Advocates" list, which recognizes the country's leading young attorneys for their legal accomplishments.

With approximately 65,000 members, the National Bar Association is the oldest and largest network of African-American attorneys and judges in the U.S., the firm said in an announcement. Award recipients are vetted by a panel of former association presidents and key individuals, in addition to a separate evaluation covering nominees' advocacy, innovation, leadership and community involvement.

"Erin is very deserving of this recognition based on her immense passion for achieving justice for those who have been injured through no fault of their own," says Jeffrey Simon, a founding shareholder of Simon Greenstone Panatier Bartlett. "We are not surprised she rose to the top of the hundreds of nominees for this award."

A graduate of the University of Texas School of Law, Nowell devotes her practice to representing victim of serious injuries and wrongful death caused by toxic substances such as asbestos, benzene and silica, as well as dangerous pharmaceuticals and other defective products. She will be honored at the 40 Under 40 Awards Gala on July 18 during the group's annual convention in St. Louis.

"I am honored to be in the company of such accomplished lawyers from across the nation," says Nowell. "Hard work truly pays off, and I am fortunate to be at a firm where I am able to help my clients fight for justice each day.”
