Social Media Mobile Devices and E-Discovery

Epiq Systems has posted a complimentary on-demand webinar on using social media as evidence, and best practices for collecting from social media and mobile data types for use in electronic discovery. Kelley Drye & Warren lawyers participated in the event.

The event covers the preservation, authentication and collection of evidence related to social media, and its importance as it has become a big part of the evidentiary landscape in recent years.

The presentation also covers retention policies, cost concerns, technological limitations, possession, control or power, relevance, privacy, and more.
