

Solara Medical Supplies Data Breach $9.76M Class Action Settlement

“Solara Medical Supplies has agreed to a $9.76 million class action settlement benefiting employees whose personal information may have been compromised during a 2019 data breach. The class includes anyone residing in the United States or its territories and who was notified by Solara in November,” reports Top Class Actions in their blog.

“The data breach that occurred between April 2 and June 20, 2019. Solara Medical Supplies provides products and services to help people manage their diabetes, including glucose monitors and insulin pumps, according to the company’s website. Plaintiffs in a class action lawsuit claimed Solara Medical Supplies is responsible for the breach.”

Read the article.