

Steve Wozniak Faces Copyright Lawsuit Over Tech School

“Steve Wozniak will soon face the courts for a copyright lawsuit due to a technology school venture initially called ‘Woz Institute of Technology’ but was scrapped and did not push through,” reports Isaiah Richard in Tech Times.

“Instead of being board members or chairpersons of what is supposed to be a technology school that would focus on engineering and pushing forth the development of modern gadgets, both parties are square one in court. According to Business Insider, Wozniak is facing the claims of allegedly “stealing” the idea to a tech school despite having the name ‘Woz’ to it.”

Read the article.