Stroock Adds Employee Benefits Partner David Olstein

David Olstein, an ERISA lawyer with a background advising financial institutions, plan sponsors and investment committees on matters relating to the investment of pension plan assets, has joined Stroock's Employee Benefits, Executive Compensation and ERISA group as a partner.

In a release, the firm said Olstein has experience with the application of ERISA's fiduciary responsibility provisions, built through matters as varied as representing fund sponsors and managers in connection with the formation and operation of private investment funds, counseling issuers and underwriters in connection with marketing securities to benefit plan investors and advising plan sponsors in connection with the selection of annuity providers.

Olstein has served on the New York City Bar Association's Employee Benefits & Executive Compensation Committee, and he is a contributing author to the Bloomberg BNA treatise ERISA Fiduciary Law.