Supreme Court Leans Toward Trump Plan to End DACA Program for Nearly 700K Undocumented Immigrants

The Supreme Court on Tuesday appeared likely to side with the Trump administration in its effort to end a program that lets nearly 700,000 young, undocumented immigrants live and work in the USA without fear of deportation, according to a USA Today report.

Several conservative justices noted the Department of Homeland Security laid out several reasons for its decision to rescind the Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals, or DACA, program.

The court's four liberal justices argued that the decision to end DACA should rise or fall on the administration's tenuous claim that it was illegal.

"Chief Justice John Roberts looked to be the key vote, as he was in June when he voted with the court's four liberal justices to strike down the Trump administration's effort to add a citizenship question to the 2020 census," USA Today's Richard Wolf writes.

Read the USA Today article.