

CFPB Proposes Banning Use of Pre-Dispute Arbitration Agreements in Consumer Class Actions

Article

The Consumer Financial Protection Bureau has proposed prohibiting application of pre-dispute arbitration agreements to class litigation involving certain consumer financial products, according to a report published by Carlton Fields on its website.