

Negotiating Software Contracts – Successfully Negotiating a Warranty Section

Article

A warranty is one of the most important contract provisions in a software contract. Because so many factors can affect the performance of the software, publishers seek to limit their warranty, and provide limited remedies in the event of a breach. It's important for businesses who license software to have a strategy in place to successfully negotiate this section.

Avoid Copyright Infringement Claims for Affiliates and Subsidiaries

Article

Keli Johnson Swan of Scott & Scott LLP discusses how to navigate software license agreements for large corporations.

Proving Ownership of Underlying Licenses for Adobe Upgrades in Software Audits

Article

Adobe license terms often change as each new product is released, which means that the way a customer may have previously been licensing software is no longer valid.