

Terry McLaurin Absent for Start of Commanders' OTAs Amid Contract Talks

"As Terry McLaurin awaits his next big contract, he has turned his limited holdout into a full absence. The Washington Commanders' star wide receiver did not attend the first workout of organized team activities Monday and hasn't attended any offseason workouts since the conclusion," reports Nicki Jhabvala in The Washington Post.

"When the first phase of the Commanders' offseason program began April 18, McLaurin participated in strength and conditioning workouts but declined to take part in any on-field work until his contract situation was resolved. Per the collective bargaining agreement, that phase prohibits on-field work with the football coaches and limits players."

Read the article.