

Texas Jury Hits Chinese Company with $31.5M Patent Infringement Verdict

The U.S. branch of a China-based company was hit with $31.5 million patent infringement verdict, reports the Southeast Texas Record.

The plaintiff DataQuill, sued ZTE Corp. and its U.S. subsidiary in 2013 in the U.S. District Court for Eastern Texas, Marshall Division.

Nearly two years later, a Texas federal jury found ZTE USA infringed on two of the company's patents, awarding $31.5 million in damages, court records show.

Read the article.