

The Five Top Compliance Related Events of 2015

Even though the number of Foreign Corrupt Practices Act (FCPA) enforcement actions dropped during 2015, there were several significant lessons for the compliance practitioner not only to learn but also to put in place in any corporate anti-corruption compliance regime, writes Thomas Fox in FCPAComplianceReport.com.

He discusses some significant events that occurred last year that he believes portend some of the greatest changes not only to compliance but to FCPA enforcement going forward.

Those events are discussed under these headings: The Yates Memo, DOJ Compliance Counsel, First British DP, FIFA Corruption Scandal, and Volkswagen and the Zeitgeist of Compliance.

Read the article.