The Inside Story of Donald Trump's Strategy to Protect His Delegates

As Donald Trump rolls through the political calendar, his campaign has already begun focusing on a new battle that may have a broader set of consequences – finding delegates who will be loyal to his cause at the Republican National Convention, reports ABC News.

"Part of the battle has come in the form of emails to delegates and supporters trying to lock down crucial votes. The other half is a five-person task force that has been quietly being trying to amass the 1,237 votes needed," the network reports.

"Emails obtained by ABC News show the Trump campaign calling on supporters in Michigan to watch for precinct-level delegates who may defect to a rival candidate during a contested convention"

Read the article.