

The New Consumers of Utility Data

✖ Urjanet will present a complimentary webinar on how big data is becoming a must-have for multiple departments within an organization to achieve their distinct goals. The webinar will be Wednesday, Sept. 10, at 2 p.m. Eastern time.

On its website, Urjanet says accounting teams are no longer the only ones hunting down utility bills in order to pay them.

Now, more than ever before, a growing list of departments within a single organization are asking for energy data for sustainability and CSR reporting, energy consumption benchmarking and forecasting, customer and investor transparency, among many other reasons, Urjanet says.

This webinar featuring NetApp, Powerhouse Dynamics, Cox Enterprises, Verdantix, and Urjanet will discuss how the industry has seen the need for energy data span across multiple departments within the enterprise, and how these end users are applying the data to achieve their departmental and organizational goals.

Register for the webinar.